Six lovely ladies play golf and dominos at Pendleton Country Club

There are several lovely lady groups who enjoy the fun and fellowship of the Pendleton Country Club, but these pictured above enjoy the distinction of playing dominos after their game of golf. Clattering and chattering, with unbridled enthusiasm, with zeal and zest, they topple the dominos among squeals of youthful spirit. They are sometime referred to as the Domino Ladies. Pictured from left: Margie Craig, Gloria Rekers, Helen Reis, Martha A. Schmidt, Rosie Clines, and Wanda Hornsby. More information on this group and the story behind the flowers pictured can be found in the Rabbi Ben Ezra column on page 5.

New Ambulance Quarters Resolution approved

By Roger McKinney, Reporter

The fiscal court approved a resolution that authorized the application for a $500 Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) that will assist the Pendleton County Ambulance Taxing District in constructing a new 6,915 square foot ambulance quarters. This facility is to be located on 2.5 acres just off KY 330, slightly west of Falmouth (across the highway from the Pendleton County Health Center). This property, which is owned by the District, is out of the 500-year flood plain and in the approximate center of the majority of the population of Pendleton County. This facility will replace an aging and inefficient 3,100 square foot ambulance quarters, which is located on a land locked parcel of property in the 100-year flood plain in downtown Falmouth. The (CDBG) will cover only 34% of the project's cost. The remaining 66% will be financed through bond and cash funds. The total price of the project is 1.4 million dollars. If all goes as planned the project's completion date is estimated to be in November of

Other business conducted by the Pendleton County Fiscal Court in the July 22, 2014 meeting:

- There was introductory presentation of the Eagle View Subdivision Road Taxing District Petition.

- Judge Bertram said that the Butler City Council had nominated Barb Johnson to complete the term of Jim Thaxton on the Planning Commission.

- Approved the appointment of Jim Lockwood to complete the 2014 term of Myron Doan

Lady in black arrives home safe in Virginia

Elizabeth Poles, the mysterious lady in black who caused such a stir in her travels through Pendleton County last week, has arrived home in Winchester, Virginia safely. With her trek across several states at an end, her brother has come forward providing new information on Poles. According to a report by local station WLWT, it was confirmed that she was born in Alabama. However, it seems she is the mother of two children, not five as was previously believed, and that at one time she was in the army. Recently widowed and having lost her father, her journey was apparently about faith and religion. A phenomenon on Facebook and Twitter, Poles went from 5,000 to 64,000 likes during her journey.

Youth Leadership Class attends "Economic Development Day"

Recently the 2014 Pendleton County Youth Leadership Class attended Economic Development Day with entrepreneurs and economic development professionals from throughout the region as well as local policy makers.

Economic Development Day is one of several special leadership and career development events designed into the yearly leadership program curriculum to provide students with an understanding of those characteristics of leadership which all professionals share. Speakers from various professions spoke to the class about their professions, how they came to their line of work and what leadership means to them from their professional perspective.

The program was highlighted by several professionals engaged in entrepreneurship including Casey Barach, executive director of the Northern Kentucky ezone. The Northern Kentucky ezone provides a support program for businesses ranging from start up entrepreneurs to established companies commercializing a new product, technology or process. Support includes early stage capital in the form of grants, loans, forgivable loans and equity investments through the Kentucky Enterprise Funds and the Kentucky Department of Commercialization and Innovation.

Kara Williams with Vision 2015 spoke on the importance of collaboration and building partnerships. Vision 2015 is a shared public plan that represents the region's priorities. The plan contains specific action steps to achieve the region's goals and measure the impact of those goals. The complete vision is more than just a plan; it's a call to action

Youth fair - not just about rides

This year's Pendleton County Youth Fair has come and gone. The 2014 Fair Board members were all new and did a great job. Now it's a time when they can begin plans for next year's fair. There was some grumbling about there not being any carnival rides which do add a little something extra but the Youth Fair is about much more than just rides. There are projects for students and entertainment galore. The many projects for Pendleton County youth to participate in involve work and requirements which teaches them responsibility and prepares them for bigger challenges in the future. Students involved can be proud of their efforts in sewing, farming, caring for animals (for which they earn money at the livestock auction), arts & crafts, horse shows and many other categories. As for entertainment, there was a gospel sing, family fun night, pageants, KRT play, laser tag, tractor pulls, and many other events and contests. As is shown in the photos above and below, there are many projects for students to enter at the Youth Fair. The above photo shows the FFA Grand Champion Corner. FFA members are required to keep a record book on the project they are doing, a requirement that teaches diligence and discipline. Below is a photo of the 4-H projects on display at the Floral Hall, such as vegetables, flowers, photographs, and a variety of others offered. In gratitude for all the Pendleton County Youth Fair means to the young people and those not so young, be sure to lend your support to the new Fair Board as they strive to provide the best for all involved. Be ever mindful that the youth of today are tomorrow's leaders.

Practice run for school buses

The Pendleton County Schools Transportation Department is ready to roll into a new school year. As part of the preparation for the first day of school, drivers will participate in a practice run on the afternoon of Wednesday August 6, 2014.

This run is a practice day for the bus drivers and school personnel in Pendleton County.

Executive Director of Student Services Joe Buerckley says there are several benefits involved with this process.

The practice run gives drivers an opportunity to review their routes, school administrators an opportunity to review their dismissal procedures, and allows parents and students to confirm their assigned bus.

Families are encouraged to watch their bus stops to note the assigned bus for that route. Buses will depart from schools at the normal dismissal time.

Mechanics have been working throughout the summer to ensure that all buses are inspected, tuned up and in excellent working order. Drivers and monitors have participated in training classes to review safety policies to provide safe and efficient transportation of students.

The first day of school for Pendleton County students will be Monday, August 11. Everyone should be on the lookout for children during their morning and afternoon commute.

A copy of the 2014-15 transportation route list can be found on our district website: <http://www.pendleton.kyschools.us>

Celebrate the food and people of Kentucky's Farmers' Markets

Kentucky consumers can buy nutritious local foods and honor the people who produced them at the same time by visiting a farmers' market during National Farmers' Market Week August 3-9.

"At a Kentucky farmers' market, you can buy the freshest fruits and vegetables as well as meats and other foods you can serve to your family with confidence," Agriculture Commissioner James Comer said. "You also can meet the people who produced those foods. They're your friends and neighbors, people you see in town or at the ballgame or at church, and when you shop at a farmers' market, you're helping them provide for their families."

More than 155 farmers' markets in Kentucky offer a vast array of fruits and vegetables along with cheese, eggs, meats, honey, fresh cut flowers, crafts, and more. Shoppers can enjoy the sounds, smells, and tastes of Kentucky's finest foods at markets that provide sampling and live entertainment.

The Kentucky Department of Agriculture's Office of Agricultural Marketing and Product Promotion offers marketing assistance and educational training to Kentucky's farmers' markets and their vendors. "We recognize farmers' markets as viable retail outlets for agricultural products, and we want to strengthen these markets to help Kentucky producers," said Sharon Spencer, the department's farmers' market specialist.

The KDA maintains a statewide farmers' market directory and produced a comprehensive farmers' market manual and resource guide in cooperation with the Kentucky Department for Public Health.

that the entire community must own and embrace. Northern Kentucky's future depends on this ability to work together to find creative solutions to the economic and social issues facing our region.

Next, Scott Wells with the Advantage Kentucky Alliance at NKU spoke on the value of leadership in growing businesses. The Advantage Kentucky Alliance is a statewide, not-for-profit partnership that provides assistance and training to help manufacturers of all sizes grow, improve their manufacturing and business strategies and processes, adopt advanced technologies, increase productivity, reduce costs, and improve competitiveness.

The program also included in depth discussions of leadership by Judge Executive Henry Bertram, Mayor Mark Hart, Zoning Administrator Brian Thompson and Industrial Authority Director Marianne Roseberry. Each presented perspectives on what constitutes good leadership and citizenship.

The Pendleton County Youth Leadership Program is a collaboration of the Pendleton County League of Women Voters, Pendleton

County Schools and the Pendleton County Community Development Office. The purpose of the program is to mentor youth to better understand the dynamic of leadership and civic engagement and their importance to the community. This understanding will in turn enable these youth to become leaders not only among their peer group, but also in the community at large. The program also offers youth the opportunity to meet with professionals from many different career paths to understand what they do, how they came to their profession and how they view leadership from their perspective. This perspective is crucial. The thought is, no matter the career choice all leaders share common character traits. Meeting with several leaders from different walks of life allows youth to discover and understand those character traits and why they are important.

The Youth Leadership Program is guided by an Advisory Council comprised of educators, parents and community leaders. For more information about the program or to discuss joining the Advisory Council, please call Bill Mitchell with the Pendleton County Community Development office at 859-654-4567.

USDA extends ELAP deadline

U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Farm Service Agency (FSA) Administrator Juan M. Garcia announced that the enrollment deadline for the 2012 and 2013 Emergency Assistance for Livestock, Honeybees and Farm-Raised Fish Program (ELAP) has been extended to August 15, 2014. Originally, program sign-up was scheduled to end August 1.

The new deadline gives livestock, honeybee, and farm-raised fish producers who experienced losses because of disease, adverse weather, wildfires or colony collapse disorder between October 1, 2011 and September 30, 2013, an additional two weeks to enroll in ELAP.

"Because ELAP is an important safety net for key sectors of American agriculture, we've provided this two week extension so that producers can submit required documentation and apply for program benefits," said Garcia.

Producers are encouraged to contact their local FSA service center or visit FSA's website at www.fsa.usda.gov for additional information regarding ELAP.

ELAP was authorized by the 2014 Farm Bill, which builds on historic economic gains in rural America over the past five years, while achieving meaningful reform and billions of dollars in savings for taxpayers. Since enactment, USDA has made significant progress to implement each provision of this critical legislation, including providing disaster relief to farmers and ranchers; strengthening risk management tools; expanding access to rural credit; funding critical research; establishing innovative public-private conservation partnerships; developing new markets for rural-made products; and investing in infrastructure, housing and community facilities to help improve quality of life in rural America. For more information, visit www.usda.gov/farmbill.

USDA to send acreage history and yield reports for 2009-2012

U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Farm Service Agency (FSA) Administrator Juan M. Garcia announced that farmers should start receiving notices updating them on their current base acres, yields and 2009-2012 planting history. The written updates are an important part of preparing agricultural producers for the new safety net programs established by the 2014 Farm Bill.

"We're sending these reports to make sure that farmers and ranchers have key information as they make critical decisions about programs that impact their livelihood," said Garcia. "It's important that producers take a few minutes to cross check the information they receive with their own farm records. If the information is correct, no further action is needed at this time. But if our letter is incomplete or incorrect, producers need to contact their local FSA county office as soon as possible."

Verifying the accuracy of data on a farm's acreage history is an important step for producers enrolling in the upcoming Agriculture Risk Coverage (ARC) program and the Price Loss Coverage (PLC) program. Later this summer, farmers and ranchers will have an opportunity to update their crop yield information and reallocate base acres.

"We're working hard to prepare and educate farmers on the new programs created by the 2014 Farm Bill," added Garcia. "I encourage producers to bring their USDA notice to any scheduled appointments with the local FSA county office. This will help ensure they have the information they need with them to discuss the available program options."

By mid-winter all producers on a farm will be required to make a one-time, unanimous and irrevocable election between price protection and county revenue protection or individual revenue protection for 2014-2018 crop years. Producers can expect to sign contracts for ARC or PLC for the 2014 and 2015 crop years in early 2015.

Covered commodities include barley, canola, large and small chickpeas, corn, crambe, flaxseed, grain sorghum, lentils, mustard seed, oats, peanuts, dry peas, rapeseed, long grain rice, medium grain rice (includes short grain rice and temperate japonica rice), safflower seed, sesame, soybeans, sunflower seed, and wheat. Upland cotton is no longer a covered commodity.

$10 GED testing available for a limited time in Kentucky

Kentucky Adult Education (KYAE) has announced that eligible adults may take each module of the GED® test at the reduced rate of $10, as a result of $20 vouchers being provided to eligible individuals.

With the use of these limited-time vouchers, the cost of a full GED® test will be only $40. The regular cost of the full battery of GED® testing modules is $120, so this represents an $80 savings to test takers.

"We are really excited for the opportunity for eligible adults to take each GED® test module for just $10," said JoEllen Mitchell Director of Pendleton County Adult Education. "We encourage everyone to spread the word about this promotion. It will only last as long as vouchers are available from KYAE, so people need to come in as soon as possible."

The current version of the GED® test was launched by the GED Testing Service™ in January 2014. The test, which is computer-based, consists of four modules:

Reasoning Through Language Arts, Mathematical Reasoning, Science and Social Studies. This test allows for individual content modules to be taken one at time. According to Mitchell, approximately 1627 adult residents of Pendleton County lack high school credentials.

"We know that passing the GED® test opens doors to the future by helping adults prepare for college and job training and to get better jobs," said Mitchell. "We want as many of our eligible residents to take advantage of this opportunity as possible."

Pendleton County Adult Education offers free classes to help adults earn their GED® diploma. The Pendleton County adult education center is located at 500 Chapel Street, Falmouth.

The program can be reached by calling 859-654-3325 Ext 2601, by e-mailing joellen.mitchell@pendleton.kyschools.us or visiting the Pendleton County Adult Learning Center Facebook page on the internet.

The needs and wants of students

One of the biggest steps to financial security is learning the difference between a need and a want, according to the Kentucky Higher Education Assistance Authority (KHEAA). Students who have learned that difference will find that their bank accounts grow more quickly.

Needs include clothes, food and, for many students, transportation.

With clothes, a want may mean wearing only designer items that cost more than clothes that last just as long and look just as good.

Students might want to eat a deluxe cheeseburger at a fast food restaurant every day, even though they can save money by making their own sandwich and brown-bagging it.

If a student needs a car to drive to and from school, a want would be a new sports convertible instead of a reliable, used car with good gas mileage and less flash. A student who lives in a city, however, might save more money by taking public transportation.

Each time students are faced with a purchase, they should ask themselves if they really need it or if they can get by with a less expensive item - or without it completely. They should save the money they don't spend so it's there when they really need something.

KHEAA is the state agency that administers Kentucky's grant and scholarship programs, including the Kentucky Educational Excellence Scholarship (KEES). It provides financial literacy videos at <http://itsmoney.kheaa.com>. KHEAA also provides free copies of "It's Money, Baby," a guide to financial literacy, to Kentucky schools and residents upon request at publications@kheaa.com.

OPINION

Flowers and fantasy at Pendleton Country Club

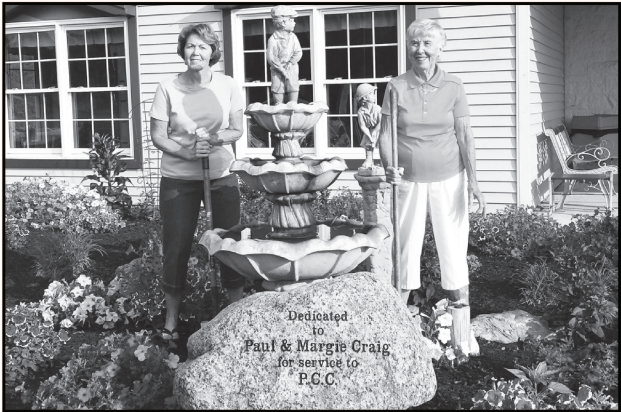

The ladies group tees off at 9 a.m., followed by a group of old men at 9:30 a.m., and, by the time the old men finish 18 holes, our lady friends have already set up for dominos, thus the clattering and chattering as we enter. They pay no attention to us except to invite us to partake of dessert which they usually bring for their members. Fresh peach ice cream and chocolate cake. They have on occasion invited certain of us old men to lick their plates clean and we have obliged.

Only occasionally is there an interchange between these two groups, for they are engrossed in their dominos and they do not like to be disrupted. Like an elderly couple who have been married for a long time, we take for granted each others presence. We may forget names but we remember faces, and when someone is missing, or a procedure is changed, like Benji in Faulkner's, The Sound and the Fury, we squeal internally until we know why.

Thus, when our lady friends failed to show on a recent Monday, we old men were ready to send out a search party until we learned that they were on a safari for three days to Perry Park on a golf outing!

But this is not the only ladies group that enjoys the beauty of PCC. Ladies league plays on Tuesdays; ladies participate in large golf outings to raise funds for various charities; and not infrequently one can observe a husband and wife or an otherwise couple playing after work or on weekends. And, at an admirable skill level. One of our ladies who has been around for over four score years recently had a hole-in- one.

The point of this story so far is to say that ladies are an important part of our

Club and without their support we would be far lesser as an organization. And they add beauty to our enterprise. Frankly, after playing 18 holes and listening to old men complain and brag, it is refreshing and pleasing to the eye to see the fairer sex exulting at dominos. And, they enhance the beauty of our course which is the impetus for this piece. I speak of the flowers that are shown in the picture on the front page.

A bit of background: Paul Craig, husband of Margie Craig, passed in 2007 and the Club erected the memorial shown in both pictures to him and Margie. Paul had assisted Margie with her flowers at the entrance to the Clubhouse, near the tee box on hole number one; and near the tee box on hole number seven. Lots of hand work, lots of lovely flowers, spiced with humor on number seven. Not just one year but year after year after year.

And, Margie Craig has continued this flower effort on her own. But, that's not quite accurate either, for another Margie (McGaha), who also does lots of freeby work for the club, has helped her significantly carry on. Someone called them the M&M squad.

A few days past, I had just parked at the entrance to the parking lot when a stranger approached me and remarked on the magnificence of the flowers. "What beautiful flowers you have! I play at lots of different courses and this is the prettiest display I have seen this year. You must have a huge budget item to underpin this quality display?"

I pointed toward Margie Craig, who was hoeing among the flowers, and I said, "That's the budget item working right there. She buys the flowers, designs where the flowers are to be placed, sets them out, hoes them, waters them, and talks to them. The other Margie helps and the ground crew scatters the mulch. That's it!"

The stranger walked toward his car, paused momentarily, and looked back at Margie Craig as if to say, "I wonder if we could hire her!"

I answered him in my own mind, "She's not for hire. This flower bed is the play ground for her and Paul."

Was it my imagination or did I hear Margie say, "Paul, pull that weed you missed over by the water pail?" I think I detected a wisp of wind stirring in the flowers...near the water pail!

process. In addition, it provides our driver's license holders access to federal buildings that might otherwise be limited to them."

Complying with REAL ID is more complicated for Kentucky than for most other states – in part because driver's licenses are issued by circuit court clerks, not by a department of motor vehicles. There are 142 issuance locations around Kentucky – all of which would have to meet a greatly enhanced security standard. A security assessment of the local offices is in process.

The Kentucky driver's license itself is not the issue. In fact, Kentucky in 2012 began issuing a redesigned license and ID card that include state-of-the-art security features. In notifying Governor Steve Beshear of the extension, the Department of Homeland Security said it "recognizes your efforts in enhancing the security of your driver's licenses and identification cards."

Kentucky granted extension status through 2015

The U.S. Department of Homeland Security has added Kentucky to a growing list of states and territories granted extensions of time for meeting requirements of the stringent new identification security law known as REAL ID – meaning a Kentucky driver's license is still sufficient for gaining access to the vast majority of federal buildings.

The extension runs through Oct. 10, 2015, and is renewable. Without the extension, those with a Kentucky driver's license would have had to produce another form of identification, such as a birth certificate or U.S. passport, for access to some federal properties.

The REAL ID Act was passed by Congress in 2005 in response to the 9/11 Commission, which recommended that the federal government "set standards for the issuance of sources of identification, such as driver's licenses."

The federal act sets minimum standards for production and issuance of state-issued driver's licenses and identification cards. It also prohibits federal agencies from accepting for official uses driver's licenses and IDs from "noncompliant" states. By virtue of being granted an extension, Kentucky is not considered to be out of compliance.

To date, 20 other states besides Kentucky have been given extensions, as have the District of Columbia and the territories of Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. Twenty-one states are listed by the Department of Homeland Security as in compliance. Nine states and American Samoa are listed as noncompliant.

"We are pleased Kentucky has been granted this extension," said Rodney Kuhl, commissioner of the Department of Vehicle Regulation within the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet. "It underlines the progress we have made and our commitment to completing the

I can not believe that someone that I cared so much about would do something like this. Someone left a printout in my mailbox that was from "Falmouth Topix" website that should be called "Falmouth Trash Box." People that put things on there and read that trash need to get a job. Why didn't they put it on Facebook? Everybody knows who did it and know that they are a compulsive liar. Just about everything that was said was lies. That is what this person is best at, lying. I don't know who Cheryl is nor do I care to know, as she was the person who edited the printout. I don't really care what people say about me, especially the liar that said them. I know what kind of person that I am and so do the people that know me. I know that I am not perfect, who is? I do know that I have done nothing that I should be ashamed of. Anyone who wants to know anything about me, I will tell them anything they want to know.

HIGHLIGHTS

Try these six surprising ways to beat allergies

From watery, itchy eyes to unbearable congestion, allergies can certainly ruin one's day, or even the entire season. But, there's no reason to remain indoors in beautiful weather.

"One over-looked approach towards feeling well lies in prevention," says experts.

With that in mind, here are six allergy-fighting tips:

- Get exercise. It may sound counterintuitive to go outside if you suffer from airborne allergies, but moderate exercise is known to strengthen the body's immune response. Just be sure to watch the pollen count, and when it's low squeeze in a brisk walk. If pollen count is high, head to the gym instead.
- Wash up. Use baby shampoo to wash your face and eye area in the shower. During allergy season, sweat can trap the pollen and irritants in the creases of the face where they are the most irritating. Baby shampoo is a safe alternative to wash away the dirt, sweat and symptoms of allergy season.

• Consider natural supplements shown in published research to help strengthen the immune system.

Allergies can be described as being caused by the immune system over-reacting to harmless particles (like pollen). It is smart to strengthen your immune system by getting proper sleep and managing your stress. Sometimes that is easier said than done; so taking a natural supplement shown to strengthen the immune system can help.

• Limit dairy. Dairy causes the creation of phlegm, which can increase the intensity of allergy symptoms like runny nose, sore throat and cough.

• Change your diet. Incorporate natural antihistamines into your meals. Look for foods that contain flavonoids, such as tomatoes and blueberries, as well as Vitamin A found in green leafy vegetables and squash.

• Use a saline spray for your nose. This may not sound like much fun, but using an inexpensive saline spray or rinse is an effective way to flush pollen out of your nose. Saline sprays can be purchased at any local pharmacy. As an alternative, use a neti pot salt-water rinse.

"Your immunity affects every aspect of the day, from work performance to emotional well-being," experts say. "By taking proactive efforts for better health, you'll be less likely to miss out on life this allergy season."

Tips for a fresh start this coming school year

Customize

Your locker is a home base during the school day, so make it your own with artwork, photos, and a dry erase board. It's also an area to refresh, so consider hanging a mirror.

Encourage students to decorate notebooks and binders with stickers and drawings, or choose their supplies based on favorite styles and colors. Just be sure the items chosen are highly functional.

Stay Focused

If your kid is rocking out to their favorite song, while texting their best friend about the latest gossip, then you can guarantee they aren't concentrating on homework. Turn off the distractions and the work will get done faster and more accurately.

For better grades and more success, get this school year started on the right foot.

scious. Formulating the words and reviewing them as you go is the best way to retain materials.

Organize

When it comes to lockers, backpacks and school supplies, organization is everything. Different systems work for different students. For example, some prefer to arrange their lockers by sequence of the day, whereas others prefer to sort items by subject or color. The important thing is finding a system that works and sticking to it.

Use tools to support the system and help maximize sought-after real estate. For lockers lacking shelf space, consider creating your own, just be sure the solution is durable. The Five Star Stackable Locker Shelf is made with heavy-duty plastic, can hold up to 150 pounds and can be stacked one on top of the other for double the shelf space.

Try this easy recipe to make breakfast more fun ents and top them up as they see fit.

Just a few minutes set aside for that first family meal of the day will help to start things off with a dash of fun and flavor.

THE NATE JONES REPORT

By Jack Wright

Jones has Tommy John surgery; 2015 season in doubt

Nate Jones sustained an ulnar collateral ligament (UCL) tear in his right elbow during rehabilitation activities from an earlier microdiscectomy on his back from May 5.

He and his wife, Lacy, flew to Florida on Monday, July 28, to meet with Dr. James Andrews. Doctor Andrews is the country's renowned expert in elbow reconstruction (known as Tommy John) surgery. The surgery was successfully performed on Tuesday, July 29, and they (Nate/Lacy) flew back to Kentucky on Wednesday, July 30.

On Monday, August 4, Nate will begin more rehabilitation procedures at Beacon Orthopedics and Sports Medicine in Cincinnati under the guidance of Dr. Tim Kremchek.

There is no specific timetable for Jones' full recover, but the expected period is anywhere from 12 to 18 months. After missing almost all of the 2014 season (two games; five batters faced), now his 2015 season is also in doubt.

White Sox general manager, Rick Hahn, was quoted as follows: "It (the UCL tear) came about during the rehab activities. It wasn't something he had mentioned prior to starting the throwing program. He felt a burning sensation in his elbow. A lot of time with the UCL tear, there's a specific instance where a player feels a pop, so to speak, or something specifically tears. That did not happen in this specific occasion. Instead, when he tried to ramp up his throwing program, he felt some discomfort that he described as burning in his elbow."

Hahn said that Jones apologized to him after this latest setback, which the White Sox general manager said clearly wasn't necessary.

"Not surprisingly, he promised he was going to work extremely diligently to get back as quickly as he could," Hahn said. "I actually thought, although wrongfully feeling the need to apologize, he had a good mindset about it. He was ready to get the repair done and get back on his rehab as soon as possible. It's unfortunate for the kid. He's a guy with a lot of upside and somebody we thought would help us this year and next year. He has been through a lot going back to that first Spring Training conversation we had down in Glendale (Ariz) when it was first his back acting out. Again, it's unfortunate, but given how hard he works and similarly his makeup, I know he will do everything in his power to get back as soon as he can. We're going to have to just let biology take its course here as well."

Even with these myriad current setbacks following 135 appearances over the last two seasons and a 3.55 ERA, the White Sox are not ruling out Jones as a long-term fit. "For the time being, it creates an opportunity for somebody internally to step up and fill the void, or potentially another item to pursue in the coming weeks and months," Hahn said.

Ladycats keep busy during off-season

By Cindy Fitzpatrick

The Ladycat soccer team has been busy in the off-season beginning with the Instructional Youth Camp early in June. The following week, June 16-20, the girls attended an on-site team camp given by Victor Petro, a former professional player and college coach. The girls worked hard that week and took their knowledge on the road June 21 to Morehead, Ky. to play in the Rowan County 7v7 Varsity Tournament. The Ladycats lost an early pool play game to make it harder on them to advance to the finals but they met that challenge head on. The Ladycats had to battle through some tough opposition to the semi-finals but got a re-match of the game they had lost against Rowan County that morning and this time reigned victorious. The final game against Ashland was up and down the whole way and ended in a 3-3 tie after double overtime. In the shoot-out, Alex Blackaby and Erin Fitzpatrick put the ball in the back of the net and BreAnne Wilson, goalie, stopped four shots making it unnecessary for the other two Ladycats to shoot.

After the dead period, the Ladycats continued with practice and both the varsity and JV teams travelled to the Lexington area for the Bluegrass games on July 26. The JV suffered two losses on Saturday while the varsity lost their early game against Lincoln County. The varsity Ladycats rallied in the afternoon to tie University Heights at 2-2. Erin Fitzpatrick scored the first goal off a nice cross from McKayla Manor and Katie Boggs scored the second goal, also off a cross from McKayla Manor. Due to weather, the Sunday games were cancelled.

The Ladycats will host their own Soccerama pre-season tournament on Saturday, August 9 and the public is invited and encouraged to attend. The JV Ladycats, coached by Rachel Turner, will be playing at 6:30 p.m. while the varsity Ladycats, coached by Stacey Myers, will play at 8 p.m.

Antrobus receives honor on the basketball court

Pendleton County High School sophomore Michael Antrobus attended the 5-Star Basketball Camp, hosted by Asbury College, on July 9-12 this summer.

Michael and his team won the five on five tournament and the three on three tournament. He also received the honor of the Mr. Hustle Award for the camp.

Michael did such a remarkable job he received an invite to attend the 5-Star's All-Star Basketball Camp in New York. He was one of only 12 boys to be invited to the distinguished camp.

Michael has a desire to play basketball at the college level and is preparing daily to make that dream come

Independent Auditor's Report

Report on the Financial Statement

We have audited the accompanying statement of revenues, expenditures, and excess fees - regulatory basis of the County Clerk of Pendleton County, Kentucky, for the year ended December 31, 2013, and the related notes to the financial statement.

Management's Responsibility for the Financial Statement

Management is responsible for the preparation and fair presentation of this financial statement in accordance with accounting practices prescribed or permitted by the laws of Kentucky to demonstrate compliance with the Commonwealth of Kentucky's regulatory basis of accounting as described in Note 1. Management is also responsible for the design, implementation, and maintenance of internal control relevant to the preparation and fair presentation of a financial statement that is free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

Auditor's Responsibility

Our responsibility is to express an opinion on this financial statement based on our audit. We conducted our audit in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America, the standards applicable to financial audits contained in Government Auditing Standards issued by the Comptroller General of the United States, and the Audit Guide for County Fee Officials issued by the Auditor of Public Accounts, Commonwealth of Kentucky. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statement is free from material misstatement.

An audit involves performing procedures to obtain audit evidence about the amounts and disclosures in the financial statement. The procedures selected depend on the auditor's judgment, including the assessment of the risks of material misstatement of the financial statement, whether due to fraud or error. In making those risk assessments, the auditor considers internal control relevant to the entity's preparation and fair presentation of the financial statement in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the entity's internal control. Accordingly, we express no such opinion. An audit also includes evaluating the appropriateness of accounting policies used and the reasonableness of significant accounting estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall presentation of the financial statement. We believe that the audit evidence we have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our audit opinions.

Basis for Adverse Opinion on U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles

As described in Note 1 of the financial statement, the financial statement is prepared by the County Clerk on the basis of the accounting practices prescribed or permitted by the laws of Kentucky to demonstrate compliance with the Commonwealth of Kentucky's regulatory basis of accounting, which is a basis of accounting other than accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

The effects on the financial statement of the variances between the regulatory basis of accounting described in Note 1 and accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America, although not reasonably determinable, are presumed to be material.

Adverse Opinion on U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles

In our opinion, because of the significance of the matter discussed in the Basis for Adverse Opinion on U.S. Generally Accepted Accounting Principles paragraph, the financial statement referred to above does not present fairly, in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America, the financial position of each fund of the County Clerk, as of December 31, 2013, or changes in financial position or cash flows thereof for the year then ended.

Opinion on Regulatory Basis of Accounting

In our opinion, the financial statement referred to above presents fairly, in all material respects, the revenues, expenditures, and excess fees of the County Clerk for the year ended December 31, 2013, in accordance with the basis of accounting practices prescribed or permitted by the Commonwealth of Kentucky as described in Note 1.

Other Reporting Required by Government Auditing Standards

In accordance with Government Auditing Standards, we have also issued our report dated April 4, 2014 on our consideration of the Pendleton County Clerk's internal control over financial reporting and on our tests of its compliance with certain provisions of laws, regulations, contracts and grant agreements, and other matters. The purpose of that report is solely to describe the scope of our testing of internal control over financial reporting and compliance and the results of that testing, and not to provide an opinion on the effectiveness of the Pendleton County Clerk's internal control over financial reporting or on compliance. That report is an integral part of an audit performed in accordance with Government Auditing Standards in considering the entity's internal control over financial reporting and compliance.

Respectfully submitted,

Adam H. Edelen
Auditor of Public Accounts

CHAPEL OF PRAISE

Pastor Kevin preached a message about the Power of God. His text was taken from Acts 2:17. Sadly and regrettably, the Church world today realizes very little that God's power is as powerful as it was six thousand years ago when He created this universe.

There is never an hour, minute or second of the day when God's power is weakened. God's power is so great and mighty that men and women have been brought down, taken apart and put back together again all by the power of God.

Each time a soul is saved and delivered from the forces of hell, God's power is displayed and present.

God's power is demonstrated in four ways...by His word, His Spirit, His creation and His church.

Prayer concerns for the week: Shirley Galloway, Woody Smith, Joyce Brock, Elstun Bobb and Elaine Heffner.

FALMOUTH BAPTIST

Thanks to Jeff and Denise, Dean and Darrel and Vicki Vater for sharing a beautiful song titled, "In Times Like These" for our special music. We are blessed to have so many people willing to use their gifts/talents to glorify God.

The message of the morning was about stepping outside the box and getting out of our comfort zone. Matthew 28:19 tells us to go and make disciples of all nations. Bro. Cohen thanked those who were willing to get out of their comfort zone and do VBS a different way this year. Our goal needs to be to reach the lost, lead by example and teach what God's word says.

Bro. Cohen and Angie are taking some much deserved time off and Jeff Dean filled in Sunday evening. Jeff's message also encouraged us to do new things. May we continue to step out of our comfort zone and reach the lost!

FALMOUTH CHRISTIAN

This past week the youth went to church camp and had a wonderful time. They had so many pictures to show and so many stories to tell. They did a lot of swimming, sports and even a mud bath. They loved the minister and the way he preached. They learned a lot about the Bible, the focus was on baptizing and John the Baptist. While there one child accepted Christ and one who is thinking about it. Friday was mission day and for breakfast they had to eat boiled eggs, toast and milk or tea. It was great to see our youth want to go to church camp. Blessings to the youth.

Pray for the sick, the lost and the people who have lost loved ones.

FIRST BAPTIST

Even though it was stormy this past Sunday, the Son was shining through out our church. Bro. Harry, with Tammy on the piano, sang, "Till The Storm Passes Over."

Bro. Harry's message was taken from Luke. Everyone needs to participate in the game of life, with the Bible as our weapon. We need to pray everyday to Jesus to be spiritually fit. Some wait till everything goes wrong in their lives, then they cry out for Jesus' help. We need to pray in bad times and in good times, because there is a battle everyday between the spirit and the flesh.

Pray for those needing hope, peace, love and healing. Pray also for our military, our community and our country.

"Sometimes God lets you hit rock bottom so that you will discover that He is the rock."

HARVEST COMMUNITY

Bro. Dale's morning message was based on scripture text from Hebrews 2:14. Christ's death and resurrection set us free from the fear of death because death has been defeated. Every person must die, but death is not the end; instead, it is the doorway to a new life. All who dread death should have the opportunity to know the hope that Christ's victory brings. How can you share this truth with those close to you?

August opportunities: Sunday, August 10, Godman's annual pig roast. At 8 a.m., August 16, Men's meeting/breakfast.

Prayer concerns: Elstun Bobb, Jim Bergman, Velma Steele, Maria Barlow, Terry Maxedon, Barbara Singer, Phil and Janis Wiggins and Tina Arevalo.

Come Worship with us at 111 E. Shelby St. Sunday's 9:30 a.m., Bible study, 10:30 a.m., and 6 p.m., worship services, 6 p.m., Wednesday prayer service and youth meetings 6 p.m., Wednesdays and Sunday's.

"Sharing the love of Jesus in a practical way."

MORGAN CHRISTIAN

Although it wasn't even raining, the ark, piloted by Noah, as portrayed by Dallas Hannah landed in our Church Sunday morning. April Lecrone led our young people in a skit "Noah's Ark," about the great flood. Good job April and cast, aged two

"Those who know Your name will put their trust in You, for You, O Lord, have not forsaken those who seek You." ~ Psalm 9:10 to eight.

Estille Vaughn was our moderator for the morning and also had the Words of Institution for the Lord's Supper. Steve Wood and Kathie Moreland were elders with April Lecrone, Dawn Wood and Connie and Buddy serving as deacons.

A bridal shower was given for Brandi Moreland Sunday afternoon in the Shotwell Aulick Fellowship Hall. Congratulations Brandi Moreland and Alex Carson on your upcoming marriage.

Our July collection of jelly for St. VDP was delivered Monday.

Don't forget Godman's Pig Roast at 1 p.m., Sunday, August 10. Bring your lawn chairs and covered dish. We are hoping Noah is not able to float his boat for that.

NEW HOPE

It is hard to believe that it is already August. Summer seems to come and go so quickly. Usually, our summers are full of vacations, camping, swimming and cookouts. We hate to see summer go so quickly. Soon it will be time to prepare for winter.

Life is like that. It goes by very quickly. No matter how long we live, we look back and life seems to go by very quickly. Kids grow up fast and years pass by before we even notice it. What is after life? There are two options, Heaven or Hell. This life prepares us for our eternal destination. We make the choice. What choice are you making? New Hope Church of Christ wants to help you prepare for heaven.

NEW ZION

Come join us for worship and Christian fellowship. Sunday school begins at 10 a.m., morning worship is at 11 a.m., and evening worship starts at 6:30 p.m. Bible study and the CrossFire Crew meetings are on Wednesdays at 6 p.m.

Upcoming opportunities: The Sharing Circle will meet at 6:30 p.m., August 15, don't forget to bring a purse for the purse swap. At 6 p.m., August 23 there will be a Hymn Sing.

Psalms 66:1 "Make a joyful noise unto God, all ye lands."

Please remember in prayer Janet Bishop, Tina Cochran, Steve Ivers, Mark Pribble, Ruby Stanfield, Michael King, Opal Whitaker, Tina Areveleous, Gwen Wilson and Jeanetta Downard. Also remember to pray for our country and its leaders.

PLEASANT RIDGE

Happy 42nd Wedding Anniversary Roger and Olga Sullivan.

Bro. Rick's message was from Exodus 20:7. You shall not take the name of the Lord your God in vain.

How much respect do you have for God and His name? God's name could be used in vain by the way you speak and your life style. A name stands for who you are. This makes God angry and He will not hold anyone guiltless for using His name in vain. God's name loses its glory when used as a slang such as golly and gosh.

How much is too much to miss use God's name. You need to think before you speak. God's name is a powerful tool when used right. Salvation is one of those tools!

If God's name means so much to us as Christians our churches won't be empty.

Sunday night Bible study will be from various books of the Bible on Christian belief.

PINE GROVE

The Pine Grove community was blessed Sunday with a rain that changed our foliage to a beautiful green. It rejoiced our souls as we gave a special thanks to God.

Carol opened the service by reading from Daniel 4:28-31. Again, Melanie enhanced the service by singing and playing her guitar. The youth also enjoyed adding to our music program. Prior to her sermon, Carol had church school with the youth, giving them a preliminary message on Daniel. The main theme of her service was based on the life of King Nebuchadnezzar. With her closing, she related God has a hand in everything we do.

A box to place miscellaneous items for the Methodist Home has been placed on the back pew.

The Dream Kids will meet from 11 a.m., to 1 p.m., July 30.

Our annual picnic will be held at noon, August 23 at the home of Tommy and Alta Gaunce.

Let's remember our sick, bereaved and all of those who have special needs in our prayers. May God be with you.

OAKLAND CHRISTIAN

Revival was a blessing with Bro. L.D. Campbell. We enjoyed our special music each evening.

"Back to School Under 500" is from 1-5 p.m., August 1, up through fifth grade. Children are asked to bring a new pack of underwear (up to size 10-12), to be donated to school resource centers.

The evening of August 1 for grades six and up, will be their "Back to School Lock-in Bash," ending Saturday morning at 9 a.m. They are asked to bring school supplies.

Prayer concerns include Chanis Cox, Zelma King, Gary Holmes, Ruth Ann Cummins (heart surgery, St. Joseph), Maria Barlow, Jim McCann, Diana Lewis Mullins, Dorothy Bertram, Mike Gilbert, Bobby Groneck, Joyce Holmes, Larry Clemmons, Robbie Nieves, Charles Ernest Wright, Janis Wiggins, Barbara Singer, Amy Barnes, Christine Biddle, shut-ins, our leaders, and our armed services. We extend our sympathy to those loved ones of Tom Fields of Lexington.

SOUTHSIDE

On July 27, 2014 Marvin Sullivan, worship leader, led the congregation in the morning worship service with the opening hymn, "Holy, Holy, Holy!" Bro. Clay Sullivan preached the sermon, "Help From Above" from Psalm 86:1-4. The memory verse for the week comes from Psalm 86:4, "Bring joy to your servant, for to you, O Lord, I lift up my soul."

We had a great turn out for Vacation Bible School on Saturday July 19, 2014. Thank you to all who helped made this event a success.

Come and worship with us this Sunday: 9 a.m., Sunday school and 10 a.m., worship service. Have a great day!

Common poultry parasites

A variety of parasites attack poultry by either sucking blood or feeding on their skin, and feathers. Knowing what pests may be bugging your flock will help you figure out how to deal with the problem. Continuous external parasites are ones that spend their entire adult life on their host. Temporary parasites feed on, but do not live on, their host.

Some continuous external parasites include:

Northern fowl mite: The most common external parasite in chickens, turkeys, game birds, pigeons etc., northern fowl mites are commonly spread through bird contact. Signs of infestation depend on severity. Heavy infestation can cause anemia. Chickens may lose weight and exhibit decreased feed intake and egg production and a lower carcass quality. Look for dark patches on the feathers and on the skin around the vent area. They are fast movers and leave behind a lot of fecal material. They are usually more of a problem in cooler months. "No Mite Strips" are an effective way to control this mite in your flock. Some powdered insecticides also work, but you need to read the labels very carefully. Organic producers may want to use something like diatomaceous earth as a natural insect preventative. The lifecycle of these mites is five to seven days, so growers will need to be vigilant in repeating treatments to prevent a large infestation.

Sticktight fleas: Although they are called fleas, they are stationary compared to other fleas. They burrow; females attach to the skin around the face and wattles to lay eggs. Sticktight flea larvae develop in the soil around chicken cages, and a few weeks later, adult fleas emerge to continue their lifecycle. If you raise chickens in wire cages three or more feet above the ground, you won't usually have a large sticktight flea infestation. You can use Sevin dust on the fleas and on the litter. An alternative treatment method is to coat the adult fleas with petroleum jelly.

Scaly leg mites: These mites burrow into and live under the scales of the feet, lifting the scales and deforming the feet. Chickens in wire cages three feet or more above the ground don't usually have problems with these mites. Prevention is easier than treatment, so you should inspect new birds before adding them to your flock. These mites are frequently picked up at poultry shows, so you should treat all chickens upon returning from a show. You can treat scaly leg mites by dipping chickens' legs in linseed oil or petroleum jelly at seven day intervals for three weeks. Never use fuel oil, kerosene, motor oil or other liquid petroleum products on chickens. Even after mites are dead, the swollen and deformed look may remain.

Chicken lice: Lice feed on blood and other fluids, and they cause birds to become restless. That feeling adversely affects feed intake, digestion, growth and egg production. Young birds have a tougher time with lice. Lice tend to be more abundant in unclean, overcrowded conditions. Pesticides used for Northern fowl mites will usually control lice.

Temporary parasites can also be annoying and hard to control. A number of blood-sucking external parasites feed on chickens, but they don't actually take up permanent residence. After feeding, they usually leave the host and hide in the floor and walls of the housing near the host. The most common are:

Fowl ticks: These soft ticks are also known as blue bugs. They are very different from ticks found on dogs and cats. Fowl ticks are reddish brown to dark brown, and they have wrinkled skin. Female fowl ticks lay several batches of eggs, usually 30 to 100 eggs per batch, sometimes 700 to 800 eggs in her lifetime. They need a blood meal to produce each batch. If conditions are right, ticks grow from egg to adult in about 30 days. Adults are extremely resistant to starvation and can live more than a year without a blood meal.

Chicken mites: Also known as red mites or roost mites, they are often confused with the Northern fowl mite, but these mites do not spend their entire life on their host. Chicken mites are pretty small, but you can see them, and they are typically visible in large numbers.

Bed bugs: Typically found in large numbers, adults are reddish brown and can completely engorge on hosts in about five to 10 minutes.

All of these temporary parasites cause similar damage. You will probably see birds with bloody lesions of various sizes. Changes in poultry housing have almost eliminated these three main temporary parasites from commercial flocks. However, they do sometimes appear in small flocks of chickens, other poultry, or exotic birds such as parakeets and cockatiels. Because they are so rare now, it may be difficult to find pesticides labeled specifically for treating them. There are a few things you can do to minimize them. You need to eliminate cracks and crevices where these pests shelter. Prevent wild birds and rodents from entering with screens or other barriers. Treatment should include a thorough cleaning and sanitizing of the poultry house. You can detect any parasites by examining your flock on a regular basis. Early detection really helps control any problems that may occur.

How to make your own salsa

Tomatoes are now in season, and soon you might have more on your hands than you know what to do with. A great way to use excess tomatoes, peppers, onions and other ingredients is by making salsa you can enjoy fresh now, or preserve for use throughout the year.

To safely can salsa at home, you have to use proper food preservation techniques. If preserved incorrectly, the salsa could not only taste bad but also result in botulism, a deadly food-borne illness caused by toxins produced by bacteria in the canned food.

There are thousands of salsa recipes out there. Not all of them are safe for canning. As with any food preservation recipe, make sure the one you select is research-based and meant for home canning. These recipes have been tested for their food safety and will ensure that you can at the right temperature for the appropriate length of time. Other salsa recipes, found on the Internet, in cookbooks or from the family recipe stash, should not be canned. Enjoy those salsas fresh or frozen for longer storage.

Once you choose a research-based recipe – available at your local extension office-- be sure to follow it closely. Do not change the ingredient amounts. Never reduce the specified amount

Back to school on a budget

A new school year is quickly approaching, and you've probably noticed the shelves at retail stores are lined with school supplies. If you have children in school, this is something you know is going to happen every year. It may not be included in your normal monthly budget, however, because it is not a reoccurring expense. Don't worry. You can still prepare and save yourself time and money when your family purchases supplies and clothes for the new school year.

The first thing to do is determine what your child actually needs. School supply lists are usually available at schools and sometimes at local retailers. Once you have the list, go through last year's school supplies and office supplies you have but rarely use. This can help you mark some things off your list before ever stepping foot into a store.

Identify the items on the list that you will need to purchase and prioritize them. You can develop a budget based on your needs. Talk with your children about the difference between needs and wants before going to the store, especially if they will be shopping with you. Check out retail store sales flyers or coupons in your local newspaper or online.

At the store, stick to the items your child needs. Often stores will give large discounts to entice you to buy more. If your budget allows, you may set aside a small amount of cash, such as two to three dollars to allow your son or daughter to pick a small want on their list once you are at the store, such as a printed binder as opposed to a less expensive plain binder.

Before going clothes shopping make sure you know the dress code for your child's school. Sort through your children's closet to determine what clothing items they can still wear from last year and what you need to purchase. Remember you can spread out your clothes buying over several months because you child won't need some items like snow boots or jackets until it gets colder.

You are also less likely to overspend if you bring a set amount of cash to the store and leave when it's gone, compared to using a credit card that doesn't have immediate consequences.

More information about budgeting and other financial topics is available for adults and children at the Pendleton County Cooperative Extension Service.

Dead livestock removal updates

The Pendleton County Conservation District continues the Dead Livestock Removal Program for the seventeenth year as a service to the landowners/producers of Pendleton County. However, the rules and regulations changed a couple years ago so be aware of the changes and prepare to abide by them! The new rules are there will be a limit of five total head (this includes mixed or all one species) to the same name and/or address without any questions. After that the Pendleton County Animal Control person will be asked to check for neglect or natural causes of death. If natural causes there can be an additional two pickups for a total of seven in one fiscal year. This fiscal year will be July 1, 2014 through June 30, 2015. Harmon's Dead Livestock Removal Service will pick up for you but you will have to pay the charges yourself for any after five or seven pickups.

Any natural disaster will be reviewed by the Conservation District Board of Supervisors. When you have a dead animal (cow, horse, hog or sheep) contact the Harmon's Dead Livestock Removal Service at 859-567-2111 as soon as possible, give them good directions to your pickup site, a paved or hard surface for easy loading. Also give them a phone number where you can be reached. Harmon's Dead Livestock Service will bill the Conservation District for the full amount charged, no out of pocket cost to you.

This service is made possible through a grant from the Kentucky Division of Conservation State Cost Share Environmental Program and a budgeted item of the Pendleton County Conservation District. The Pendleton County Fiscal Court supports this program and encourages landowners/producers of Pendleton County (only) to use this program.

Kentucky law regulates the proper disposal methods for dead livestock. Disposing of dead animal properly can also help control coyote and other predator problems. Leaving carcasses in pastures or open pits not only encourages coyotes to associate livestock with food, but also causes coyotes and predators to congregate near homes and farms.

Water quality plans concerns can also be properly addressed using approved methods of disposal. This will help ensure the protection of surface and ground water in Pendleton County.

For more information, call our office at 859-654-3376, ext. 3 or stop by at 814 U.S. 27 South (USDA Service Center) Falmouth.

All programs and services are offered on a non-discriminatory basis.

Enjoy "stuff" for your next family meal with this easy homemade recipe interesting for you to join me in looking back over the past years to take a peek at Daniel's and my life during our growing up years?

On August 28, 1988, Lydia Yoder beamed down at her newborn son. What a miracle and a gift from God! Daniel's mother proved to have an exceptional mother's heart filled with love and dedication. It was soon obvious that he would have his daddy's curls, with Daniel's being a bit lighter, a golden brown. His parents Ephraim and Lydia diligently taught their children the ways of the Lord and were an example of prayer and dedication to God.

With six brothers and one sister, life on a dairy farm didn't get boring. At seven years old Daniel was responsible to help with his part of milking cows by hand. Eventually the farm was replaced with a pallet shop. He and the Yoder brothers pitched in once, more determined to help Dad make a go of the business. They put their heart in it working swiftly and steadily.

Tobias, Daniel's oldest brother, owned a landscaping business. After his younger brothers were old enough to replace him at the pallet shop he had the opportunity of helping Tobias with building retaining walls, patios, and other landscaping. That was something he always enjoyed doing.

Meanwhile, 50 miles away, and a little over a year after Daniel's birth, David and Dorcas Raber had a newborn daughter. Baby Gloria was born on November 12, 1989.

Our parents also did an outstanding job in caring for their children and teaching us about God and His word.

Javin, my big brother and hero, was almost a year older than me. Even though he was a boy and I a girl we spent hours together playing. I became more involved in playing outside with him, and he even joined me in playing with dolls! Catching minnows and wading at a nearby creek was one of our favorite activities.

At six years old I enjoyed the adventure of moving to Flat Rock, Ill. I knew all would be well as long as my parents and three brothers were with me. Upon arriving at our new home items were unloaded including a cage with our beloved pet. I can't even remember now whether it was a dog or a cat. Back then it certainly was very important to us. The cage door was opened and it slipped out and dashed for the nearby woods. Javin and I were devastated convinced it was gone for good. Dad tried to reassure us, telling us that it'll come back. Of course what he said was true.

Aren't dads always right?

The rest of my growing up years were spent here in Illinois while Daniel's family lived in Ohio. The question keeps coming up: so where did you meet each other? Good question, how about saving that answer for next week?

This week I'll include an old standby recipe that my mother used quite a bit during my years at home. When we didn't know what else to make we could always settle on "stuff." Even though it is not listed, imagination is perhaps the number one ingredient in this recipe. Add or omit vegetables according to your taste. Sour cream or a soup may be used to replace gravy if desired. Vegetables may be sliced or diced. We usually make this with venison but you can use any of kind of meat you wish.

Ingredients:

- 1 1/2 pounds of hamburger, sausage or venison
- Potatoes
- Cabbage
- Carrots
- Peas
- Onions
- Cheese and or gravy

Directions:

In a large skillet brown the hamburger. Layer raw veggies on top of meat. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Spread gravy or cheese over the top. Cover and simmer on low until veggies are tender.

FFA Leadership Training Camp 2014

Some kids wait around all year for summer vacations or parties with friends. For FFA Executive Team members, this isn't the case. They wait around all year for their chance to go to FFA Camp. FFA Camp was held in Hardinsburg, Ky. from July 7-11. Pendleton County had 14 members go and their lovely advisor Ms. Antrobus. They not only had fun, they took officer classes and learned how to work as a team and a family. They had 386 members and advisors of the FFA representing 24 chapters. Kids from all over Kentucky meet and greet. They decide their goals for the upcoming year and find new ideas of what to do along with working with athletic groups and playing games. They played volleyball, softball, and basketball along with table tennis, shuffleboards, and swimming competitions. Are you intrigued yet? Wanna know more? Take an agriculture class and join the Pendleton County FFA. You won't regret it. By Krystal Fields.

CARD OF THANKS

Charles E. Wright Thanks

The benefits of living in a small community become noticeably evident when one becomes ill. Throughout my recent brief hospitalization in Lexington and stay at Cedar Ridge Health Campus, I was blessed with many phone calls, visits, prayers and food from my neighbors, church family, friends and relatives. This all meant so much to me, was greatly appreciated and led to my quick recovery. Thank you from the bottom of my heart for everything each of you did for me; I count each of you as a blessing in my life. Charles E. Wright. 25-1c-pd
